FRIEND

Ines Okonkwo-Harada, gallerist. Curates in Bellevue and still owes Mercer. She can put a name on the guest list of the Vesperline gala or tell you which collectors are there tonight.

RIVAL

Tobias Wren, society reporter. Writes for a trid gossip channel, knows every face on the scene and once covered Mercer's fall with relish. He is invited tonight.

WHY YOU TAKE THIS JOB

You used to be inside: the invitations, the receptions, the right people. A scandal you did not cause threw you out. Six nuyen is good money, but the real payoff is one evening standing at the top again. And maybe the name behind it all.

SINs, elves and the price of existing. A SIN (System Identification Number) is more than an ID in the Sixth World: bank account, apartment, health insurance, the right to vote. Lose it and you officially stop existing. Mercer comes from Tír Tairngire, the elven nation south of Seattle, where bloodline decides careers. That Mercer now works with ork punks counts as a disgrace in the family.
